

Applied social research with an emphasis on social justice

Did you know that you can pursue graduate studies in Sociology at Laurentian University?

Be part of the Masters of Arts in Applied Social Research

The MA in Applied Social Research emphasizes:

- research that focuses on current societal concerns with a view to problem solving;
- research that has a practical application;
- research that promotes social equality and human rights.

Université Laurentienne
Laurentian University

Work with faculty members whose research interests include:

■ social and moral regulation ■ social construction of race, class, gender and sexualities ■ sociology of aging ■ family, childhood and youth ■ health ■ environment ■ globalization ■ underdevelopment ■ food insecurity and food sovereignty ■ women and development ■ labour and trade union studies ■ state formation and state policy ■ the social organization of knowledge ■ sociology of education ■

Learn from faculty members whose research techniques and approaches include:

■ participatory action research ■ critical analysis of official discourse and social policy ■ political economy ■ feminist research ■ program evaluation ■ institutional ethnography ■ grounded theory ■ statistical analysis ■ survey research ■ historical sociological approaches ■ human rights indices and assessments ■ social impact studies ■

The MA in Applied Social Research can also be taken in French, or students may opt to take a combination of English and French courses.

Apply on-line at horizon.ouac.on.ca/laurentian/grad/e

For more information, contact:

- Dr. François Dépelteau, Interim English Graduate Coordinator: (705)-675-1151 extension 4228 or fdepelteau@laurentian.ca or visit our website at <http://sociology.laurentian.ca>
- School of Graduate Studies: Tel: (705) 675-1151 ext. 3204; Fax:(705) 671-3840, Room L-314, R. D. Parker Building, Laurentian University, Sudbury, Ontario, P3E 2C6.
- Admissions: (705) 675-4843 or admissions@laurentian.ca